Afro Scholar

MARY JANE PATTERSON

" . . . Mary Jane, graduated from Oberlin College in 1862, she had the distinction of being the first woman of African-American heritage to receive the A.B. degree. Mary Jane taught in the Institute for Colored Youths in Philadelphia before moving to Washington, D.C., to continue in the educational field where she devoted much of her means and time to forming and sustaining an industrial school for girls of her race. Two of her sisters and one brother also graduated from Oberlin College and the two girls also had careers as teachers in the District of Columbia's school system. The sisters made a home for their parents during the 1880's when Henry and Emeline were in financial straits, in addition to caring for two other dependent persons. . . Mary Jane passed away in 1894."

WELCOME BACK TO THE AFRO SCHOLAR!

The Cooperative Research Network (CRN) has relocated to Northeastern University (Boston) and with this issue resumes publication of the Afro Scholar Newsletter. It remains the definitive general bibliographical reference tool in Afro-American Studies. The last issue covered 1987, and this issue covers 1988 and 1989. The next special issue—scheduled for publication in February—will cover 1990 and 1991. Beginning in 1992, the Afro Scholar will be published two times each year, in the Spring and in the Fall. At least 5000 copies will be distributed to institutions and to scholars on their campuses and at key conferences.

The Afro Scholar Newsletter was established in 1982 at the University of Illinois (Urbana-Champaign), and was published at the University of Mississippi from 1984 to 1987. It is being reinstated after being out of print for four years. Editorial work is being carried out by the faculty and staff of the Department of African-American Studies at Northeastern University.

The uniqueness and importance of the Afro Scholar derives from its timeliness and its coverage. (1) It will be the only source of Black Studies scholarship published twice each year. (2) Its coverage of almost 40 journals specializing in scholarship about the Black experience makes it the most extensive listing available. In addition, no other publication attempts to provide regular coverage of journals in other disciplines and fields. Users of the Afro Scholar will have access to Black Studies articles in over 2500 journals in the social sciences, the arts, and the humanities.

The Afro Scholar should provide additional intellectual sustenance and support to scholars in the field. It will inform you about recent publications and trends in scholarship, and it will help you keep in front of university administrators the fact that Black Studies continues to be a very vibrant and productive field of study. Librarians and even publishers will also find this publication of great use in identifying books, journals and manuscripts for acquisition.

We welcome our readers to send us off-prints and notices of publication, and to place us on the mailing lists of journals and publishers so that we might provide as complete a listing as possible of relevant recent publications. Any other comments on our efforts would also be appreciated.

We are inviting students, scholars, and institutions to take out subscriptions to the Afro Scholar Newsletter, ask your libraries to subscribe.

Subscription information can be found on the inside back cover.
